

Breakfast

Full English

PRE-COOKED meats, whatever they are,
Stay untouched, if I awaken,
Whatever prospects for the day are,
To the smell of eggs and bacon.

*Taste buds tingle. Grab the sauce,
Feeling I could eat a horse!*

Crumbly croissants have adherents.
How can folk be so mistaken?
Today's enhanced by interference
With a sausage, eggs and bacon.

*Shapes and colours on my plate:
Knife and fork can hardly wait!*

Kindly keep your steaming kippers —
Charmless pair — for I've partaken,
With toes a-curl inside my slippers,
Mushrooms, sausage, eggs and bacon.

*Red and yellow, shades of brown:
What a joy to get them down!*

Fresh fruit chosen by mistake means
Missing what you could have taken:
Sauce, hash browns, fried bread, baked beans,
Mushrooms, sausage, eggs and bacon.

*What a prospect! Look out, tum!
Self-indulgence, here I come!*
